RPH Welcomes Ken Leith as Engineering Associate

San Antonio, Texas (May 16, 2023) - RPH, an industry leader in building envelope solutions specializing in roof and wall penetration protection, is pleased to welcome Ken Leith to its engineering and technical team. His appointment is pivotal to RPH's strategy for accommodating its growing operations and supporting advancements in its existing product lines, with an additional focus on testing processes to ensure compliance and adherence to industry standards.

Ken brings a strong and diverse skill set to RPH, including expertise in engineering R&D, quality control, and the development and implementation of testing protocols. As a materials subject matter expert with a focus on coatings, insulation, adhesives, and gaskets, Leith is set to make substantial contributions to the development and enhancement of RPH's product offerings.

Jay Barbieri, Vice President at RPH, notes, "bringing Ken into our team is a key for RPH's overall strategy, underscoring our dedication to maintaining high standards in the industry. His broad experience in engineering, testing standards, and materials science is essential for our growth. Ken's ability to tackle complex client and product challenges will greatly enhance our efforts."

Ken shared his enthusiasm, stating, "I look forward to applying my decades of engineering experience to this role at RPH, a company committed to creating quality, market-driven products. I admire RPH's approach to actively addressing client and market needs with solutions that truly matter. It's exciting to be part of a team focused on delivering practical and significant solutions."

Ken's focus on refining testing protocols and enhancing quality control measures will be crucial for ensuring the reliability and effectiveness of RPH's solutions as the company grows. RPH looks forward to seeing the valuable contributions Leith will bring, furthering the company's success and industry leadership.
